

Point

On a promontory in a lake within a city built by the famed architect Walter Burley Griffin and his wife Marion Mahony, rises an elegant glass confection which is home to the best restaurant in the city - The Point. Here, in lamp-lit art deco splendour, comfortable well-heeled patrons like computer engineer Jerome Glancy, come to break bread and feast on the fine food of its chef, Flora, whose food is an idea, carefully thought out, before it becomes flesh on a plate. In a modern city, the pleasures of gastronomy are neither affordable nor of interest to much of the population and the piece of land on which the Point rests approximates as home for a couple of oddly matched vagrants: ex-lawyer Clovis and a young heroin addict, Gwentyth. When a man is brutally murdered, the paths of the haves and the have-nots cross and what looked like difference suddenly seems strangely more familiar. The Point is a novel of intricate complexity and wit about our appetites and desires and the way they irrevocably shape the world.
